Greetings brothers and sisters!

African Pastors Conferences is planning to hold a Northern Nigerian conference run in September 2024. Although we held conferences in Abuja last year, we did not go any further north. However, we are convinced that taking the message of Romans, along with the books, fellowship, and other resources, to church leaders suffering persecution and privation in these difficult regions, will be vital in encouraging them and equipping them to persevere.

We estimate that the five conferences to be held, God-willing, in Kano, Jos, Gindiri, Kaduna and Abuja should attract over 1000 delegates. The local organiser, Peter Abutu Joshua, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church in Abuja, has travelled across the region in recent months to prepare the ground and make ready for the conferences. The impact could be vital, enabling men under the greatest pressure to remain steadfast and faithful in the face of the most extreme challenges. The combined effect of raids by Fulani herdsmen and attacks by Boko Haram extremists, bringing devastation to entire villages, means that church leaders play a critical role in equipping believers to persevere in the faith. How vital that they be well resourced and encouraged in their ministry.

We will be giving every delegate three free books, sponsored by the publishers, including: Workers for your Joy by David Mathis, Expository outlines and Observations on Romans by Rob Ventura, Romans by Andrew David Nasseli, and Law and Gospel by John Colquhoun. There will also be a well-stocked book shop at each venue, making available specially chosen titles that will be of great help to these church leaders at heavily subsidised prices they can afford.

God-willing, the speakers for this run will be Joshua Bolaji from Welkom Baptist Church, South Africa, and Barnabas Olare from Trinity Baptist Church in Mombasa, Kenya.

We do need your help and partnership in this vital work as we seek to raise $14,000 USD / £11,000 GBP for the running costs of these conferences.
